

Optimisation of Enzymatic Interesterification through Control of Oil Quality and Composition

W.D. Cowan¹, J. Hemann², N. Korsholm², H.S. Yee³ & H.C. Holm².,

¹Novozymes UK, Chesham, UK ²Novozymes A/S, Bagsvaerd, Denmark ,

³Novozymes Malaysia, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

The identification of factors which can influence enzyme activity in vegetable oils is an important factor in optimising efficiency. This paper examines the current knowledge in this area and also examines research into how these factors can be practically controlled. The role of fat composition in this is also examined to demonstrate the role that this plays in practical operation of enzymatic interesterification